THE SILENT CITY.

[The words "Contentere omnes," from the first line of the second book of the "Eneid," were found scrawled on a wall excavated at Pompeii.]

"Silent they all became"—strange words to be uncovered in the dust, where ages keep their ruins, old and deep,
Where in that buried city by the sea,
In homes they builded and no longer need,
Silent all are laid!

Did he whose pencil traced the letters there
Do it for love of the Virgilian phrase
In those far distant days,
Or see, by some presentiment, in the air
The shadow of the undeciphered fate
That laid all desolate?

These silent people, these whose names are lost,
Who day by day walked this deserted place
And saw each other's face,
We need not ask what human lives they led,
Or with what prayers in that wild storm of fame
Silent they all became.

Men of our kind, they loved the earth and air
And joy of being, loved to buy and sell,
Loved pleasure overall;
Knew hope, ambition, disappointment, care;
Called off for help on some all pitting name;
So till the silence came.

Out of the dust that slumbers on the ground
What sounds unto the poet's ears arise,
What visions to his eye!
Then in the present's land, tumultuous sound
He finds what silences where men and walls
Are as the dust that falls!

—Samuel V. Cole in Critic.

A PHANTOM VOICE.

The vast circle of the horizon is unbroken, yet here is no solitude, for birds in thousands sweep circling about, from the huge albatross, flying past at his 60 miles an hour, to the little swallowlike Mother Carey.

The scene for the time is peaceful.
The thundering storms which lash ocean's face into fury and fill the air with hurrying wrack and sweeping rain are stilled.

But though the surface of the water is smooth, save for a little ripple like those on the summer face of a river, the great bosom of the south Atlantic heaves in mighty pulsations to the long, rolling billows, which follow in a stately, endless procession and tell of some distant hurricane past or to come.

Above, the great dome of heaven is a cold, steel blue, flecked here and there with cloud masses, snow white as Alpine peaks, reflecting in their shadows
the colors of ocean's face.

The sinking sun flashes a sparkling glory over the scene, and the great cloud forms change tint after tint. As he declines westward above him shafts of light shoot up half way to the zenith.

Rolling on the swell lies a boat.
Three of its crew appear to live; of the others the living souls have fled.
Two crouch with bowed heads. The third, a young fellow in his first manhood, looks wistfully round. The great birds fit by him with bright eyes. They do not settle yet.

Once as a great billow lifts the boat skyward he thinks he sees, far away to the east, a silvery speck. What is it—a ship? Had the God of that cruel blue sky heard his prayers? For he had been praying as few ever pray and seemed to have a feeling that he had been heard.
Anxiously he waits for a huge wave to rush past and lift them again to the same altitude, but it comes not, and the sun sets.

They have robbed their dead comrades of their coats, and now the three huddle together for warmth and meager comfort, for another awful night is before them. Will dawn see them alive? The nearest succor is 60 miles away.

In a highly decorated apartment, half divan, half sitting room in appearance,
a thin, wiry man sprawls on a couch.
He is smoking a Burness cheroot, one of a stock he laid in last voyage, but he does not appear to be in that calm, peaceful frame of mind of which a necessary for the full enjoyment of the blessed weed—nor is he.

Captain Abel Cushman of the American ship Paul Revere has a fine craft under him, a strong crew, good officers; has made a smart passage this year, and yet is greatly troubled. An hour ago he woke from his after dinner nap "most scared to death." A young man, a stranger, had stood up and said,
"Steer west by south." Even when he had opened his eyes there stood the stranger, who, as the skipper lifted himself up, vanished.

This happened some half hour since.
"Waal, I swan to grations!" said
the captain. "West by south, hey?
Now, what in thunder did it mean?"

He began pacing up and down his little saloon, muttering and thinking.
Many old sea yarns about similar circumstances came into his mind, and a strong feeling was creeping over him that he must obey this supernatural order. And yet a merchant skipper does not care to pose as a fool in the eyes of his crew.

"What will the boys think?" he muttered. "Cush, my sonny, I guess you're bewitched."

His roving eyes fell on a book which lay on a little side table. Aimlessly he took it up, and as he did so—was it mere fancy?—again the voice spoke,
"Steer west by south." He dropped the book, whispering in wonder, "Waal, I dew!"

The volume had fallen open and lay at his feet. As he picked it up he saw it was a Bible.

"Cush," he whispered to himself,
"that was spoken on the gospels."

He turned over the pages and looked at the fly leaf.

"Eliphazeth Coleby. From his loving wife, Mizpah."

His brows contracted. He was trying to remember the method of some modern "sortes" which the old women at home used to practice—something to do with a key.

Presently he again muttered to himself, "There ain't no harm anyhow."

Opening the book at random, he laid it on the table and placed a forefinger on the open page. Then he looked at the verse thus selected.

"There came out two women, and the wind was in their wings."

INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, JULY 30, 1898.

THE WATER QUESTION.

Like Banquo's ghost, the water question will not down in this town. Every energetic, go-ahead and unselfish citizen of Sonoma is waiting with surprising patience for the City Trustees, who were elected on a platform pledged to a municipal ownership of water-works, to again present the proposition to the voters.

On Wednesday evening next the City Trustees meet in regular semi-monthly session and the probabilities are that they will no longer be delayed by those who are hampering them with private fictitious water propositions having for their sole purpose the freezing out of a municipal system of water works that will pay good interest on the investment and at the same time prove an entering wedge to enterprises that are bound to follow that will push this silurian-dominated town to the fore.

This matter now rests solely with the City Trustees. Let them again submit the water proposition to the voters. The people will do the rest. Lying and deceit have been resorted to by the self-interest opponents of the proposition with the result that they gained a slight advantage by defeating the proposition by seven votes last April.

As the late lamented Abraham Lincoln once remarked: "You can fool some of the people all the time, you can fool all the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time." Thus it is with our local water fight. The people have been fooled once too often by self-interest agitators. When the water proposition is again submitted it will surely carry and this town will have been snatched out of the clutches of the silurians and pull-backs forever.

MORE CANDIDATES.

In this week's issue will be found the political cards of a number of leading and popular Republicans of this county. Jack Woodward, City Treasurer of Santa Rosa, is out for the nomination of County Treasurer. Mr. Woodward has twice been elected Treasurer of Santa Rosa and on both occasions the Democrats elected the head of their ticket. Jack is a Native Son, having been born and raised in this county, and it goes without saying that in his case a nomination is equivalent to an election.

W. A. MILLS, who it will be remembered is the popular Deputy who so ably assessed Sonoma and Vallejo Townships this year, is out for the Republican nomination for Auditor and Recorder, and announces himself in another column. Billy, as he is familiarly called, is very popular in Sonoma and Vallejo Townships and should he receive the nomination he will sweep everything before him down this way.

Chas. H. Ohm of Embarcadero also announces himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination of Constable of Sonoma Township. As a Deputy under Sheriff Allen he has made a splendid record as an efficient officer and is a terror to law-breakers, a number of whom he has brought to justice the past two years.

The Republican Congressional District Convention will meet in Sacramento on Tuesday, August 23rd, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress. The counties in the district and the delegates are as follows: Del Norte, 3; Lassen, 3; Mendocino, 11; Napa, 11; Shasta, 7; Siskiyou, 8; Tehama, 6; Humboldt, 17; Marin, 8; Modoc, 3; Plumas, 4; Sierra, 5; Sonoma, 21; Trinity, 4.

GRANT RICHARDS, the able editor of the Santa Rosa Press Democrat who has been very ill the past few months, is now on the mend and it is to be hoped by his many friends and admirers that he will soon be able to resume his editorial duties on that excellent journal.

REGISTRATION in this county closes on August 15th. Every voter should see to it that his name is entered upon the Great Register before that time, else he will lose his vote.

THE Democratic State Convention meets at Sacramento, August 15th. Everything points to the nomination of Maguire for Governor.

DEWEY AND SAMPSON AND SCHLEY.

BY ALFRED H. HUDDART.

PREFACE.

[Let our hearts and hands be joined. Progress is not had by an everlasting debate on issues that were dead and buried years ago. If there must be debate let it not be as to whether we shall go ahead, or not, but rather as to the best means of immediately improving our position. The free enlightenment of such a nation as ours is the result of over a hundred years of the germination of the seed sown by the Declaration of Independence. Now "the corn is in the ear." Soon we shall see "the ripe corn in the ear." The glorious fruition of the doctrine of equality for all special privileges to none. Let us not pull back in the breaching of the harness of duty, and as we strain on the tugs attached to the car of progress may the Goddess of Liberty never need to use a whip.]

Oh! history now we'll continue to make, It'll take us a year or two yet To get in our hand, but won't it be grand To be first of the nations? You bet! As the ages roll on till the set of the Sun, And the eons and eons go by, We'll remember the Maine, as we add to our fame,

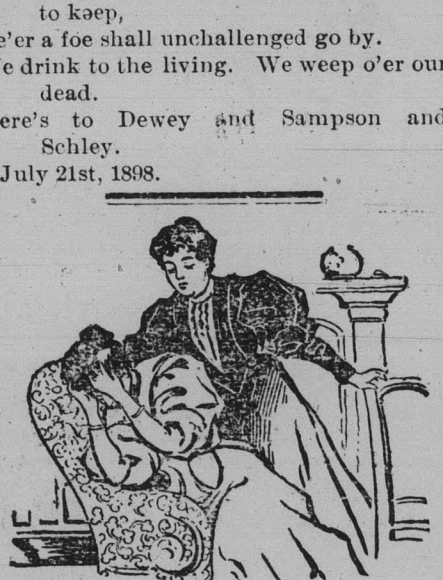

Led by Dewey and Sampson and Schley. Not on conquest we're bent; but by Heaven we're sent To make war for humanity's sake, To lift up the fallen, to cheer the oppressed, And our rightful position to take.

Let the trumpets proclaim! give each hero his name! Wave aloft our proud flag in the sky! As the shades of our martyrs look on from the Maine, Cheer for Dewey and Sampson and Schley

When our children shall ask us "what meaneth all this?" Let us point them on high to the flag Emblazoned in glory, with liberty crowned, Nor yet suffer our ardor to lag.

We are wed to our country, to guard, and to keep, Se'e a foe shall unchallenged go by. We drink to the living. We weep o'er our dead.

Here's to Dewey and Sampson and Schley. July 21st, 1898.

Love that Alters.

"Love is not love that alters when it alteration finds." That is one of the sublimest lines in all literature. It is the final definition of love by the world's greatest reader of the human mind—Shakespeare. Nearly all women who truly love, love in this sublime way.

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. He has devised a perfect and scientific remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for all weaknesses, diseases, disorders, displacements, irregularities, and debilitating drains peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it, and no honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute that he may make a little larger profit.

"I was afflicted with kidney trouble and I have always had a torpid liver," writes Mrs. E. Crosswhite, of Buffalo, N.Y. "When I commenced your medicine I was not able to stand on my feet. I used one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and five vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I am now well. I had not walked in four months when I commenced the treatment; but in ten days I was able to walk everywhere."

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Judge Dougherty called the calendar in both departments of the Superior Court Monday. There were a large number of cases coming before His Honor.

In the matter of the estate of the late Mrs. Giacinda Gianella a petition for a deed was granted.

George E. Ortmann was appointed administrator on the estate of Sila Burdell, in a bond of $150.

Mary E. Freeman was appointed guardian in the matter of the estate and guardianship of Etta E. Barnes et al., minors, in a bond of $1,000 to each minor.

The matter of the settlement and distribution of the estate of Jeff Thompson was continued to August 1st. The confirmation of a return of real estate was continued to September 6th.

In a bond of $100 to Gladys F. Meyer et al., minors, Susie C. Beattie was appointed their guardian.

The motion to tax cost in the matter of Babetta Meyer was submitted and denied.

The motion to dissolve the injunction in the action brought by J. W. Horn against Hans Pederson was submitted and taken under advisement.

The suit brought by Ira C. Jenks against Henry Gibson was transferred to Santa Clara.

The entering of D. Cozen's plea, the Healdsburg man charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, was continued to August 1st.

The arraignment of Richard Lachmann, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, was continued to August 1st.

The arraignment of James Collins and Richard Swain, both charged with assault with deadly weapons, Sam Sinclair, charged with arson, Arthur Williams, charged with burglary, were all set for August 1st. Deputy District Attorney Butts filed information in these cases Monday morning.

THE SULTAN AND OUR MISSIONARIES.

The Porte has demanded the recall of two American Missionaries from the province of Aleppo, on the pretext that their mission is likely to cause disturbances. "The sick man of Europe" is as unreasonably as his political health is feeble. As a bright contrast to his obstinacy and stupidity, the people of America are acknowledging far and wide the beneficence of the mission of Hostetters Stomach Bitters, namely, to relieve and prevent malaria, rheumatism and kidney complaint, chronic dyspepsia, constipation and liver trouble. The nervous, the weak and the infirm derive unspeakable benefit from its use, and it greatly mitigates the weakness and infirmities which are specially incident to advancing years.

Thomas O. Larkin, the first white child born of American parents in California, died of pneumonia in San Francisco last Saturday night, aged 63 years. He was a son of Thomas Oliver Larkin and Rachael Larkin and was born in Monterey in 1835. The deceased was known to many pioneers of this valley, having had prominent relatives here in early days.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Now a Feejee Islander.

John Mitchell, who left this place with Geo. Spanning and joined the adventurers who sailed from San Francisco on the brig Percy Edwards in search of a manless isle or any other old island in the South Seas, has been heard from. His brother of Glen Ellen received a letter from him last week from Bua Vanua Levon, Feejee Islands, where he is a prosperous store keeper. Unlike his companions, when the Captain of the Percy Edwards deserted and the ill-fated company was broken up, Mr. Mitchell had considerable money and he at once located on the Feejee Islands. From the accounts given in his letter he is prospering and will probably remain on the islands for some time.

Our Schools.

The High School opened last Monday with thirty students and Benjamin Weed as Principal and A. C. Olney as Vice-Principal.

The Grammar School will open next Monday with four teachers instead of three, as formerly—one more room having been added to the school in order to accommodate the increase of scholars. W. O. Hocker will have charge of the school as Principal during the absence of Vernon Goodwin in Virginia. He will be assisted by Miss Alice Bryant, Vice-Principal, Miss Susie Shaw and Miss Minnie Cook of the intermediate and primary grades, respectively.

Warm Weather.

Last Tuesday was the hottest day that has been known in this valley for many years. The thermometer varied in different parts of the town between 102 and 106 degrees. Wednesday and Thursday were also exceedingly warm, but at no time did the thermometer go beyond 100° on those days. Vineyardists report little or no damage to grapes from the scorch.

Brevities.

Miss Jeanette Cooper was a visitor to San Francisco last Saturday.

John Batto & Son of Vineburg commenced operations with their fruit dryer last week and now have a large force of men at work on apples and plums.

J. H. Neve, the well-known Searcher of Records and Conveyancer of Santa Rosa, accompanied by Miss Lottie Lee Lytle, visited Sonoma yesterday.

Mrs. M. Marti has let the contract for a seven room cottage, with all modern improvements, to B. P. Norris. The cottage will be erected on her ranch near Schellville.

The wiring of the poles of the Sonoma Electric Light Company commenced last Wednesday and will be pushed rapidly forward to completion. It is expected to have the plant in full blast about August 15th.

Chas. Hein, accompanied by a party of sportsmen, passed through town one day this week en route to Mendocino county, where he will spend some time hunting deer. The entire party was well equipped with dogs, guns and ammunition and presented all the appearance of professional hunters.

Valley of the Moon Chapter, No. 85, O. E. S., received two new members last Thursday night. Almost the entire membership was present and after initiation services a banquet was held in honor of the newly elected members.

The people of Sonoma Valley should not forget that to-night the Glen Ellen Social Club gives a grand ball for the benefit of the Sonoma Red Cross at the Glen Ellen Park Pavilion. That this ball will be a grand success goes without saying. Sonoma will be well represented and it is expected that many party-going people will be present from Santa Rosa and Kenwood.

THE CALIFORNIA HOME.

Entertainment Last Thursday Night for the Benefit of the X-mas Fund.

The first of a series of entertainments for the benefit of the X-mas fund was given at the California Home for Feeble Minded Children Thursday evening. The children themselves were the participants and the performance showed excellent training and reflected much credit on the Superintendent and instructors of that institution. The girls' orchestra rendered several selections and the marked ability of these young ladies caused much comment. Patriotic drills were a feature of the programme and Cervera, the Spanish Admiral, was cleverly burlesqued. All the numbers were tastefully and appropriately costumed and this, together with the splendid scenery of the auditorium, greatly enhanced the effects of the programme. The audience was large and enthusiastic and it is to be hoped that large attendance and enthusiasm will continue during the series of these delightful affairs. The unfortunate children will then fully enjoy the X-mas holiday and the charity inclined will have done their duty.

Succumbed to Typhoid Fever.

Claude Lafferty, eldest son of Jerry Lafferty, the well-known rancher residing in the mountains near Glen Ellen, is dead, a victim of the dreaded typhoid fever. Young Lafferty, who was a strong, robust man, was taken ill on Monday, the 18th inst., and although medical attendance and the best of care was given him he passed away at 12 o'clock Wednesday night, just nine days from the time he was first taken sick. The deceased was a native of Sonoma Valley and was 26 years of age. The remains were interred in Valley Cemetery, this place, Friday at 2 o'clock, Rev. O. E. Hotle conducting the services.

Death of a Prominent Divine.

The Rev. B. F. Burris, well-known to the old residents of this valley, died at his home in Alameda last Sunday morning, after an active life of many years as a prominent worker in the M. E. Church, South. The deceased, who was a brother of David Burris, President of the Sonoma Valley Bank, and an uncle of Jesse, Dan and Frank Burris of this place, resided here many years ago and leaves a large number of Sonoma friends who knew him in his early life. The funeral was held in Alameda Wednesday.

Republican Primaries.

The Republican primary election will take place next Tuesday to elect delegates to the County Convention, which convenes in Cloverdale on Tuesday, August 9th. The polls will be open from 12 m. to 7 p. m. The following have been selected as election officers for Sonoma: L. H. Green, Inspector; D. M. Eschbach, Judge; John Revie, Clerk.

A number of Schellville ladies attended the initiation and banquet of the Eastern Star in Sonoma on Thursday evening last.

Chas. H. Ohm has announced himself as a candidate for Constable for Sonoma Township. As a Deputy Sheriff he has made a most excellent officer.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Long of Penn's Grove, Mrs. E. Mallon, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Collins, Miss Mabel Collins, John Grimes and Miss Mamie Cook of Lakeville visited Jack Mallon of Embarcadero one day this week. Jack, who is an ex-resident of Vallejo Township, has more friends over that way than any man in Sonoma county. Mr. Mallon is now employed on the Jones ranch and is as fat and jolly as ever.

Duhring sells groceries, etc., cheaper than any other store in town. If you don't believe it call in and price his goods. The other stores are not in it with him.

GLEN ELLEN ITEMS.

Sheriff Sam Allen passed through town Tuesday.

The Boston Quartette held forth here last Saturday night.

Supervisor Putnam looked over the roads in this vicinity this week.

Dr. Berry and Walter Petinos of the Mervyn went to Sonoma Tuesday.

L. G. F. Atkins has returned from Santa Cruz much improved in health.

Candidates are hovering around just now. They are looking for good things.

The saloon formerly run by Jno. Hendley is now being ably conducted by M. K. Cady.

School opened Monday with a large attendance. Miss Locke, the popular teacher of last term, was re-engaged.

Chas. Precht and Capt. White, who were up from San Francisco last Sunday for a day's shooting, killed 75 doves on the Kenwood tract.

Dewey camp is the life of this burg. The sole occupants are the daughters of prominent San Franciscans. They are jolly company and give all visitors to their camp a hearty welcome.

E. A. Crepin, M. D., who is located at Kenwood, has built up a big practice for himself in this vicinity and the Los Guillicos valley. The Dr. is a splendid gentleman and a good physician.

The Dunbar school opens next Monday with Miss Annie Doss of Santa Rosa as teacher. The Trustees have taken advantage of the vacation and have painted the school building both inside and out.

Owing to the scarcity of the supply J. Chauvet has piped water from the Kohler place. Mr. Chauvet is ever ready to meet any emergency and is even thinking of taking his entire water supply from the Graham canyon. This would assure an abundance of water the year round.

Chas. Hurd, the eldest son of that well-known family, met with a painful accident one day this week. While climbing through a barbed-wire fence the Winchester rifle which he was carrying accidentally went off. The bullet entered his right hand and passed completely through that member. Hurd was at once taken to a physician and at latest accounts was doing well.

Walter Pettinos of San Francisco is either lost, strayed or stolen. One day this week he declared his intention of getting married, so having braced up on "two apples" he drove to a Sonoma church, accompanied by his young lady and two witnesses.

Upon reaching the church door his heart failed him. Poor Pettinos, it might have been his guilty conscience of a "uter was" but he fled in terror from his affianced and the church. His two witnesses followed. When last seen he was seeking refuge in one of the Union livery stable stalls. His brave sneak was on the installment plan, as it were. But you can't get married that way, Pettinos.

On last Tuesday at about 5 o'clock A. M., three rigs from the popular Sonoma Union Stables of G. S. Harris were seen heading for the Mervyn Hotel, Glen Ellen, to convey the guests to the Petrified Forest. A merry party awaited their arrival, and amid cheers and hurrahs from that lively little glen started on a trip of sixty miles to view some of nature's wonders.

Nun's Canyon, Angwin's White Sulphur Springs were visited and at St. Helena the party rested for two hours, when a lunch was served, to which all did ample justice. After seeing all the charming spots in the vicinity they proceeded to Glass Mountain, Calistoga, and the Petrified Forest. While absorbing the beauties there dusk stole a march on them and a resting place for the evening was looked for. Many were seen, but none so inviting and homelike as the well-named "Home Farm," whose genial and hospitable proprietor, Mr. H. Schwam, did everything which afforded comfort and enjoyment, and furnished a supper which would have tempted the most dainty epicure. At 7 A. M., Wednesday, after giving three cheers and a "tiger" for Host Schwam, the party started by way of Geyserville, Mark West and Santa Rosa for home, which was reached about 3 P. M. All declared this outing the most successful of the season. The excursionists were Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Curtaz, Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Mervyn, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamburg, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Schloen, Mrs. Crowley, Mrs. Schroeder, Misses Ellis, M'LAY, Soule, Durkin, Conant, Brierton, Brady, Messrs. Winslow, Conroy, Crofton, Schloen and Schroeder.

J. P. Weems must please the people of Sonoma or they would not go to him for their supplies. The hotels seem to stick to him, and why? Because Jim sells fine Kingan hams and treats every one alike. Petaluma isn't in it.

The marriage of Mr. Chas. Potter and Miss Ethel Campbell was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. O. Campbell, by the Rev. C. E. Chase at high noon last Wednesday. The wedding was a family affair, only relatives being present. Mr. and Mrs. Potter left on the afternoon train for San Francisco and after a short stay in that city will spend their honeymoon in the southern part of the State.

Miss Elsie Appleton entertained a number of her friends at a card party Monday evening. After a delightful time spent in the moonlight under the trees the young guests repaired to the house and card playing was begun. Whist, cribbage and hearts were the favorite games and dainty refreshments were served at intervals during the evening. Miss Appleton is a charming hostess and as usual did herself proud on this occasion.

During the Sundays of this month our townspeople have had the unusual privilege of listening to five able men at the Congregational Church. On July 3rd the retiring pastor, Rev. Chas. E. Chase, whom all respect and admire for his six years' righteous living among us, preached his farewell sermon. On the 10th, 17th and 24th Revs. Milliken, Merrill and Mathes, respectively, conducted the services. Next Sunday Rev. E. Lyman Hood of Berkeley will preach both morning and evening. The romantic old garden with its palms and sparkling fountains is an ideal spot for an affair of this kind and all present last night declared it to be the most novel and delightful ever held in the valley. The married ladies of St. Francis' Church had the evening's entertainment in charge for the benefit of the coming Fair in the fall. A select programme, consisting of mandoline and guitar selections, songs and fancy dancing, was rendered. Among those participating were Misses Hutchins and Ferrer of San Francisco, Mrs. Emparan, little Miss Hazel Patchner and Miss Natalie Haraszhthy. The grounds were illuminated by numberless Japanese lanterns and among the trees fancy and artistic refreshment booths had been erected. Here ice cream, lemonade and coffee were served after the programme. The ladies were well patronized and all who had the good fortune to be present pronounced the garden party a social as well as a financial success.

THE JOEFIELDS OF DEATH.

When the sparrows build and the leaves break forth,
My old sorrow wakes and cries,
For I know there is a day in the far, far north,
And a scarlet sun doth rise,
Like a scarlet fleece the snowfield spreads,
And the key founts run free,
And the herds begin to bow their heads
And plunge and sail in the sea.

Oh, my lost love and my own, own love,
And my love that loved me so,
Is there never a think in the world above
Where they listen for words from below?
Nay, I spoke once, and I grieved thee sore—
I remember all that I said,
And now they will hear me no more—no more—
Till the sea gives up her dead.

Thou didst set thy foot on the ship and sail
To the icefields and the snow;
Thou wert dead, for thy love did not avail,
And the end I could not know.
How could I tell I should love thee today
When that day I should not know?
How could I know I should love thee away
When I did not love thee then?

We shall walk no more through the sodden plain
With the faded bent o' greenhead;
We shall stand no more by the seething main
While the dark rind drives o'erhead;
We shall part no more in the wind and rain,
Where thy last farewell was said,
But perhaps I shall meet thee and know thee again
When the sea gives up her dead.

—Jean Ingelow.

THE POISONER.

I have said little about poisoning, remarks M. de Goron, ex-chief of detectives of Paris, in his recently published "Memoirs," not because the crime is less common than formerly, but because science has made it so difficult of detection and chance so seldom puts proof into the hands of the police.

It was chance, however, that permitted me on one occasion to detect a poisoner.

A commercial traveler, M. X. had his letters addressed post restante at the Theatre Francaise bureau. One morning, unexpectedly called back to town, he was astonished to see at the postoffice on a little blue envelope a handwriting unfamiliar to him. Opening it, he read:

"My Well-Beloved—I have seen your husband and have observed with satisfaction that the disease has made serious progress. His lips are quite white, his eyes hollow, his countenance ashen. I think you can hope to be rid of him in a month."

P. S.—I'll bring another little packet tomorrow.

The poor drummer at first thought it a hoax, but reflecting that chance might have put into his hands the proof of an adulterous crime which would have a sinister end, he hurried to the office of the surety bearing the title blue accuser, which he handed to me.

I turned it over in my hands, surprised that criminals who could plan such an infamous crime should forget the elementary precautions.

I wondered if it were not a practical joke, merely to make work for the police. Then I reflected that most big crimes are discovered by the criminals' imprudence, and I resolved to investigate.

My duty was to solve the mystery. I had the postoffice watched.

Early next morning a pretty young woman called to get the letter.

She was frightened when an officer very politely took her by the arm and led her to a carriage.

No one saw the arrest. The carriage was already on its way when the woman demanded:

"Where are you taking me, sir?"

"To the chief of detectives, madam."

She fell back and said no more, but her hands shook nervously and her lips were bloodless.

Large, graceful, beautiful, still young, the woman was dressed with the severe elegance of the prosperous bourgeoisie. She was a blond, whose blue eyes, marked round with blister, and whose mobile features seemed to mirror all her reflections.

By the manner in which she entered the office I knew she was a woman of the world. She sat down, nervously beating on the table. Her gesture was abrupt, her voice hoarse, and there was an odd look in her eye.

"What do you wish?" she said.

"Why am I, an honest woman, brought here?"

I tried to calm her, but her voice became harsher as she cried: "It's infamous! I need not tell you my name."

Then, with due regard to dramatic effect, I handed her the blue envelope.

She fell on her knees, crying in a voice broken by sobs: "Mercy! Mercy! I am an unhappy woman! I am a poisoner! Yes, I wished to kill my husband! But I alone am to blame. He had to obey me. Punish no one but me."

"If you knew," she went on, "how I hate my husband! To see him there, always near me, is a torture worse than death. I love the young man who wrote that note with all my soul. With him I am in heaven. But to go home and endure my husband's enmities, his lips upon my cheek—it is like fire. At any cost he must die! I prefer crime to that agony of every minute, every second. But I swear I alone am guilty. Punish me. I have merited death, but spare him, I pray you!"

Almost at the moment she seized a pair of scissors from my desk and would have stabbed herself had not her hand been staid.

I forced her to sit down and told her how much better it was that the crime had been discovered, and by gentle means I got from the weeping woman the name and address of her lover. Then I bade her wait in a neighboring room under guard.

I sent out agents to arrest the lover and meanwhile questioned her again. She said she didn't know what the power was. The lover had sent it at her request for something "slow and sure."

Two hours later the men brought in M. Leon Z., the gayest assassin they ever saw, they said.

"Well, well," he had laughed as he saw the men file in, "this is funny. I never thought it would turn out so comical."

And all the way to my office he couldn't stop laughing. He laughed even when he entered my room. I was obliged to recall to him the gravity of the accusation. He was a kind of smooth dandy of 25 or 26, with a brown mustache and the conquering eye.

"Pardon me, sir," he said. "It's so funny I can't help it."

"You call poisoning funny?" I demanded.

"A poisoning! He, he, ho, ho! Ah, if you knew you'd laugh with me!"

"Go on, speak," said I sternly.

"Well, the story is queer. Mme. X. is pretty, amiable, and, my faith, I was very happy. But such an imagination she had! You understand," she'd say to me, pointing to her husband, reading a picture paper there in his own house, 'that man must disappear. I can't bear it year after year. He must die.'"

It seemed funny to me—for I'm not a tragic lover—so I replied in a hollow voice: "You wish poison? You shall have it." Three times a week I sent a little package of bicarbonate of soda, with which she dosed him, supposing he was dying by inches, when really he was getting fat on it. If you only knew how jolly it was to feel like conspirators and take a double toll of kisses! "How you must love me," she'd say, throwing herself into my arms; "you who are so honest, yet have committed a crime for me!" Believe me or not, chief, she loved me too much, and I'm not sorry to be released by this denouement."

Of course the gay cavalier might be lying. We took no chances and sent to a bureau in a room and found a lot of little packets carefully folded. They were taken to the municipal laboratory, where, sure enough, they turned out to be bicarbonate of soda.

Then came the other agents who had been watching M. X. They said that they had learned at his restaurant that the poor victim of poisoning was as fresh as a rose and enjoyed a great appetite, perhaps due to the bicarbonate, which assists digestion.

Before bringing the conspirators together the judge and I scolded the lover. He had such an air of having done no wrong that he certainly deserved a wigging.

Before we had finished he had lost all desire to laugh and was wondering how it would all turn out. I went into Mme. X.'s room and told her the whole story. She was silent, but her attitude said: "Heavens, what stupid these police are, and how clever is my lover! He has fooled them, and we shall be freed!"

Then the lover came in and made his confession. As he spoke Mme. X. changed expression. Her lip curled contemptuously, her eye flashed. At last she interrupted:

"See here, Leon; you are lying! Tell the truth! I'd rather go to prison than bear this shame!"

"Be reasonable, dear," said Leon. "Do you suppose I'd risk the guillotine for your beautiful eyes?"

"Wretch!" she cried, menacing him with a gesture of such fury that he recoiled to the door. "Idiot! And I believed in your love! You're mocking me! Beast! Beast! But I hope you'll go to prison, just the same! Mustn't he, sir?"

We separated the lovers, but there was no reason for detaining them. In law intention does not constitute crime. And the "poisoned" man had swallowed nothing worse than digestive remedy.

Was like a woman who one day bought a revolver to shoot her lover. The armorer, suspecting her purpose, loaded it with blank cartridges, all of which she dutifully discharged at the offender without harming him.

We set the lovers free with a scold "talking to." Leon went away less jolly than he came. To the woman, weeping like Magdalen, but calm, I said: "Mama, you wished to commit crime, and it is not your fault that you failed. The law does not permit us to punish you as you deserve. But take care! You shall be watched, and if any accident befalls your husband we shall know how to explain it."

With this result: We learned that she never saw the pretty Leon again. Nine or ten months later the agent who kept an eye on the X's closed his last report in these words: "The family is more united than ever."—New York World.

English Recruits.

Every recruit must be a British subject. The enlistment of an alien is, of course, contrary to international law. He must be unmarried. Shrewish wives have driven many men into the ranks, but not with the consent of the authorities. The married man who represents himself a bachelor is liable to two years' imprisonment with hard labor.

There were not so particular in 1898. A delicious piece of doggerel put in that year represents a recruit taking leave of his wife and family:

Farewell to you, dear Nancy,
Likewise my children three.
Behold, I come to take my leave.
Of friends and family.

Nancy suggests selling her cloak and the furniture to pay his "smart money." But Jack replies that he has been attested. Smart money won't do, and he must cross the main:

You will see me roll in splendor
Have you views on vaccination? You must give up the idea of going a soldiering or your convictions. "Are you willing to be vaccinated or revaccinated?" the interrogatory runs. At last the oath is reached: "I, Thomas Atkins, do make oath that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to her majesty, her heirs and successors, and that I will, as in duty bound, honestly and faithfully defend her majesty, her heirs and successors, in person, crown and dignity, against all enemies, and will observe and obey all orders of her majesty, her heirs and successors and of the generals and officers set over me. So help me God!"—Good Words.

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

Chief Cause.

Unhealthy prime from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifest in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passages is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.
